CSWE'S RECRUITMENT FILM RELEASED OCTOBER 15

As Social Work Education goes to press, plans are complete for the national premiere on October 15 of the Council on Social Work Education's recruitment film, SUMMER OF DECISION, made possible through a gift from the Marion R. Steckler Estate. The film, 16mm sound in black and white, is a half-hour presentation built around a college junior who has an experience in a summer work program in a New York social agency which determines his career choice. Its length will make it suitable for assembly periods in high schools, for college groups and for television audiences. Behind this film are two major aims—first, to interest more young people in social work as a career and second, to present social work as a profession which calls for graduate education.

Although a large cast of social workers and college students who were in social agencies for summer work experiences planned by the Social Work Recruiting Committee of Greater New York appear briefly in the film, the major roles are portrayed by professional actors. Kevin McCarthy, a well-known television star, the agency executive, is billed as the star of the show. Nick Pryor, a rising young stage and screen actor, comes to the social agency from Toledo, Ohio to find out about social work as a career. Suzanne Pleshette, who was recently publicized in the July 6 issue of LIFE magazine in connection with a new television series, brings in some aspects of group work, through her work in a community center.

The film, produced by the Himan Brown Production Center, was directed by William A. Graham, who has made a national reputation as director of the television productions, Omnibus and the Leonard Bernstein concerts. Jack Mogulescu, a former social work publicist, is accorded special thanks for contributing his time as the chief author of the script and as executive producer. The Council Board, which is meeting in New York October 15-17, will serve as host at the premiere performance in the Carnegie Endowment Building auditorium. At the reception which follows, Mr. Mogulescu will be presented with a print of the film.

David Michaels, a college junior in a summer work program at a social agency, amuses a young child while her mother is being interviewed by a professional social worker.

James A. Linen, publisher of TIME, chairman of the Film Sponsoring Committee which is composed of 80 members across the nation, will share honors at the premiere performance with Stanley P. Davies, former general director of the Community Service Society of New York, chairman of the Film Advisory Committee. Among those invited to the premiere are Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming, Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

Over a period of a year the Film Advisory Committee viewed career films, discussed "story lines" with script writers and gave final approval to SUMMER OF DECISION. The Council expresses appreciation to the following members of the committee, some of whom also served on the Technical Advisory Subcommittee: Mrs. Betty H. Andersen, Mrs. Leonard Bernheim, Dr. Lucy Chamberlain, Chairman Stanley P. Davies, the Rev. George B. Ford, Mrs. Gabriel Galef, Mrs. Henrietta Gordon, Richard Griffith, Mrs. Mortimer Hess, Donald Hirst, Cora Kasius, Arthur Mayer, Jack Mogulescu, Bernice Quimby, Irving Rimer, William Tracy, Lawrence Wien, and Goesta Wollin.

Plans are underway for local premiere performances in communities across the country. The film will be sponsored in a variety of ways in cooperation with local members of Mr. Linen's Film Sponsoring Committee—by graduate schools of social work, undergraduate departments of colleges and universities, NASW chapters, Welfare Councils, Community Chests and United Funds.

A print of the film and a discussion guide are available for purchase at cost of $50.00 or on free loan (except for return postage) through Association Films, Inc. at their nearest branch office, Broad at Elm, Ridgefield, N. J.; 799 Stevenson St., San Francisco, Calif.; 561 Hillgrove Ave., LaGrange, Ill., and 1108 Jackson St., Dallas, Texas.

The executive of the social agency looks on while the social worker describes a new assignment to David.

FACULTY CHANGES AND PROMOTIONS

In accordance with the practice initiated several years ago, the Council has requested information on changes in faculty from the accredited graduate schools of social work, and the undergraduate departments offering sequences in social welfare content and holding constituent membership in the Council on Social Work Education. The following report is based upon the information provided by the schools.

Previously published faculty or administrative changes have not been included. The data are cited with the schools in the order in which they are listed in the Directory of Graduate Professional Schools of Social Work and Undergraduate Departments of Colleges and Universities Offering a Sequence in Social Welfare. Each citation provides (1) the name of the newly appointed faculty member, (2) his rank, (3) the field in which he will offer instruction, and (4) his former position. POST-MASTER'S TRAINING PROGRAM AT MENNINGER CLINIC

A one-year post-master's training program in psychiatric social casework and social group work began September 1, 1959, in three of the clinical services at the Menninger Clinic, Topeka, Kansas—the Adult Outpatient Service, the Child Psychiatry Service, and, for the social group work training, the C. F. Menninger Memorial Hospital Service.

In recent years, the Menninger Clinic has developed post-doctoral programs in psychiatry and psychology. Corresponding with the need for more highly trained personnel in psychiatry is the recognition of need for more competent social work practitioners. This training program is designed to assure the trainee of experiences which will hasten his professional development and maturation in the clinical practice of psychiatric social work. Selected and limited clinical assignments permit close teaching supervision, attendance at social work seminars, and participation in selected educational activities offered by the Menninger Foundation School of Psychiatry. The focus of the clinical training is on social work practice in the collaborative undertakings of diagnostic appraisal and treatment with representatives of other disciplines.

Following announcement of the training program in May, 1959, 132 people had made inquiry about it by September 1. Application procedure was completed by 27 persons, and 32 expressed interest in being considered for the program in 1960.

In recognition of the advancement in level of training now offered by many graduate schools of social work, the Ohio Division of Mental Hygiene is extending its stipend program to students in training for the Doctor's degree, as well as those enrolled in the Master's degree curriculum. The stipend program for doctoral students has been revised and benefits liberalized to reflect the progression in the level of training.

SOCIAL WELFARE COURSE ON TV

A television course entitled, "Human Needs and Social Welfare" is being offered to the public in two half-hours per week by the University of Washington School of Social Work. Taught by Professor Richard G. Lawrence and offering enrollment to viewers for credit, as well as without credit, the course is described as follows:

This course will explore the individual, group, and cultural forces which facilitate or hinder the meeting of human needs. The factors which lead society to recognize these needs and to establish social welfare services will be given attention. Major problems in "need-meeting" and social adjustment in present American society will be reviewed, as will the range of social welfare services. The particular role of the professional social worker in helping individuals, groups, and communities with their problems will receive special emphasis.

The School is considering possible follow-up through adult educational conferences organized for groups of viewers.
